

Editor-in-Chief Jessica Sheridan, Assoc. AIA, LEED AP
 Contributing Editors Murrye Bernard, Assoc. AIA • Linda G. Miller
 Online Support Ahmad Shairzay • Kevin Skoglund

AIA NY

Back Issues

Subscribe

Write the Editor

Reports from the Field

Editor's Soapbox
In The News
 Around the AIA + Center for Architecture
 Names in the News

Rhetorically Speaking

Conversation
 eOn the Scene
 In Response
 AIANY Membership Report

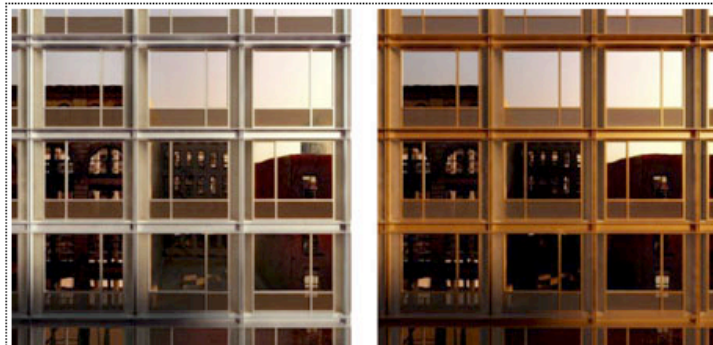

New Deadlines
 On View
 At the Center for Architecture
 About Town
 eCalendar

In The News

In this issue:

- New Residences Pay Homage to SoHo's Past
- NYPD Blue's Station House Is in the Pink
- Richard Meier Designs Second Museum in Germany
- NYC Real Estate Brokers Raise $1 Million for Habitat

New Residences Pay Homage to SoHo's Past

Gwathmey Siegel's meticulously detailed façade and floor-to-ceiling windows pay tribute to Soho's historic cast iron architecture, capturing and reflecting light and shadow as the day progresses.
 Gwathmey Siegel & Associates Architects

Construction has begun on SoHo Mews, two independent residential buildings designed by Gwathmey Siegel & Associates Architects linked by a private garden designed by landscape architect Peter Walker, FASLA. Upon completion, the 175,000-square-foot development will contain 68 luxury units — lofts, townhouses, and four penthouses — 4,500 square feet of ground floor commercial space on West Broadway, and underground parking spanning the entire site. With a nod to the neighborhood's cast iron heritage, the buildings will have a stone base and a curtain wall of metal panels. Recessed, clear, frosted, and fritted glass with horizontal and vertical channels will express the floor slabs and columns. The Art Production Fund (APF), which will occupy a ground floor office and gallery space gratis of developer United American Land, will commission custom works for the public spaces.

Minor Details

The Measure
 Of Interest
 Sited

Sighted

Classifieds

Search

Want to place
YOUR AD
 here?

Click Here
 for the e-Oculus ad form

AIANY is offering all CES credited events to all AIA members for free on a trial basis. How will this affect your attendance at the Center for Architecture?

- I will be frequenting the Center more regularly. They should make it a permanent policy.